The Von Buelow residence, 560 San Gorgonio street, Point Loma, the first of the week was reported sold to Maj. Reuben Fleet, president of Consolidated Aircraft corporation, for $100,000.00. The sale price did not include furnishings it is said.

The home is of two and three stories and was built by Mrs. von Buelow in 1929, when she was the wife of John Smiley. The ground floor is given over to a large game room and trophy room Living rooms, a dining room and guest rooms occupy the second floor while master bedrooms and other living quarters are on the third floor.

A feature of the building is its adaptation to the view. Every one of the 20 rooms faces the bay.

It is surrounded by three acres of terraced gardens containing two large fountain pools and a novel outdoor conservatory with a rock garden.

Mrs von Buelow said she had chosen the site for the home after touring many of the beauty spots of the world, including Mediterranean shores and many famed resorts.

Printing Machinery Train Visits San Diego

Yesterday printers of San Diego county were given a special treat when they were guests of the American Type Founders Co., allied with twenty-three other manufacturers of printing machinery and equipment, in viewing four modern railroad cars equipped with the latest and best in printing machinery.

This was an ultra modern printing house on wheels, equipped with operating machinery working on all phases of the "graphic arts." The latest improvements operated by master craftsmen was a thrill for those allied with the industry here and the train covering 16,000 miles and visiting 72 cities has served a fine purpose in acquainting some of us more closely with modern trends.

Loman Football Squad Ties With Escondido

Putting up a titanic struggle against fate and superior odds, the fighting Lomans from Point Loma high school battled Escondido high to a scoreless tie last Friday on the Grapepickers field The Pointers, minus services of key players and outweighed in almost every position, played uphill most of the way to remain in a deadlock for first place in the Metro loop with the Grapepickers. Qualin, leading scorer for the Lomans this season, was unable to play at all, because of an injured arm; Robinson first string quarter saw action in only half of the fray. Credit must be given, however, to the two substitutes, Watson and Isom, who, with a little more experience would be certain first team calibre. Although most of the play was in Point Loma territory, no serious scoring threats by either team were apparent.

Today the local gridders play their last game of league competition, engaging the Oceanside Pirates at Ross field. The Lomans, by winning this game will be assured of at least a tie for the championship. Escondido, however, has two games to play, and a big chance for a defeat; therefore, hopes of an undisputed title are still bright at Point Loma.

round about with suzanne

This last weekend proved particularly diverting to Point Lomans, highlited as it was by Ramona's Turkey Day on Saturday, the Silver Bay Kennel club's dog show in Balboa park, Sunday, and the many new points of interest in the San Diego zoo. Among the most enthusiastic visitors to the annual event at Ramona was Mrs. George B. Kenline who was one of the lucky winners of a prize bird. Among others enjoying the festivities besides the Kenlines were Dr. Lena Creswell, Miss Mable Charles, Mrs. L. B. Bingham, Mrs Ella Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dick. Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Barks were dinner guests of the Ralph M. Hardies, former Beach residents, who have made their home in Ramona for the past two years.

Sunday our San Diego community became definitely 'doggy', as witnessed by a number of Beachites. The most notable representative was Mrs. Clarence L. Lewis, 4732 Niagara avenue, whose cocker-spaniel, "Rebel", won two blue ribbons, one a special trophy award, in this fifth annual all-breed show in which there were five hundred entries. This class was judged by George S. Thomas of Massachusetts, international authority on dogs. Among others exhibiting their dogs were Mrs. Hazel Bodmer and Irvin Cobb. Miss Mable Charles, Miss Shirley Charles and Mrs. W. S. Harris were among those watching the parade of champion canines.

The performing seals, the clamoring honey bears and the baby hippo, "Puddles" were among the zoo stars attracting wide attention. Those seen along various paths Sunday were Mrs. Elenia Jensen and her two daughters and the Dean Marshalls with a party of friends.

Shower of Silver for Bride-elect

Among the many affairs given in honor of Miss Marie Forward, who will become the bride of J. Chalmers Ewing, Dec. 26, was the beautifully arranged silver shower given Saturday by Mrs. Ray C. Cavell at her home, Rancho Las Palmas, in Palm City. Guests had been bidden by invitations influenced by the predominating bridal motif. The T-shapt luncheon table featured a miniature bridal party, the bridegroom waiting under an arch set in a fragrant garden of gardenias and valley lilies, while the bride descended a white satin pathway bordered with orange blossoms. Three-brancht candelabra marked each cover.

Following the luncheon the popular bride-elect was showered by her friends with gifts of sterling silver. Tables were arranged for bridge-players.

Bidden were Mmes. Frank Forward, Harold M. Karns, Benjamin F. Eager, Cliff May, Albert Hindrelet, Charles Zalabak, Edward Bernard, E. G. Jackson, Alfred Loucks, Taylor Hay, Rodney Luscomb jr., Earl Gustafson, Frank Evans, Walter Bryant, Wilmer Beerkle, Emery Saddler, Benjamin Hill, Frank M. Kyes.

Misses Marie Forward, Adele Forward, Eleanor Forward, Fannie Chaffee King, Charlotte Heilbron, Clara Louise Butler, Wilda Garrett and Mary Glen Roche.

Going Places?

Consult Warren Bartlett for free travel information if you are going places. 4911 Orchard avenue at the sea-cliff end of Cable street is the attractive Bartlett apartment where his office has been recently established. Altho the first trips arranged for Point Lomans have been to England and to Cairo, Egypt, no trip is too long or too short to be given thoughtful attention. Information regarding the Queen Mary or the China Clipper are yours for the asking. Bartlett, now a student at Point Loma high school, has the endorsement of travel agency officials.

Government Trends Topic of Forum

Leading the forum discussion of modern trends in government Tuesday in the Ocean Beach Women's clubhouse, John R. Lyons said that the voice of the people in the major nations today indcated that they found more governmental control desirable In comparing Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy with Russia he declared the former two were ruled by opportunist leaders who had met a very definite need in those countries but who had created artificial conditions which were existing only with the assistance of an 'oxygen tent'. The weakest point in Nazism is its strong national character, which ignores all international cooperation and the brotherhood of man. This isolationist policy is in direct contrast to the avowedly international idea of Communism. Further, the Communistic form of government, far from being artificial, was given an exact set-up by Marx based on a scientific foundaton. By giving examples, Mr Lyons showed that Russia is demonstrating that the profit-motive is not only unnecessary but is less basic than the motives of service and accomplishment.

When the trend of our government was considered it was generally agreed that we are definitely asking for a stronger central government as the fallacies in innumerable local governments are recognized and as our civilization becomes more complex.

The next forum will be held Tuesday 10:30 a.m. in the clubhouse, when Mr. Lyons will lead a discussion of "Recent Social Trends", the findings of a committee appointed by ex-president Hoover. These meetings are open to all members of the Women's Club and are under the chairmanship of Mrs. D. H. Horner.

Why Beach District Has Little Recognition.

The following letter from State Senator Ed Fletcher to the Mission Beach Business club, a copy of which came to the News, is worthy of consideration by Ocean Beach business people and property owners and gives one of the reasons that we do not secure more public benefits than we do at present, for our immediate section.

November 4, 1936.

Mr. Jas. A. Leavy,
Mission Beach Business Club,
3721 Mission Blvd.
Mission Beach, California.

My dear Mr. Leavy:

I am happy to announce that I have pushed thru another project, now in Washington for final approval. It is wholly a development along the eastern boundary of Mission Bay State Park along Pacific avenue. The following letter from Mr. McLaughlin received is explanatory:

"Dear Senator:

I am pleased to inform you that Project 1238-736 Mission Bay State Park Project was approved by this office and transmitted to Washington on October 28th. We find that four to six weeks are usually required from the time the project leaves this office until we have advice of the approval from Washington. If we do not hear from Washington on this subject by Nov. 25th I will get in touch with them concerning it.

With kind regards, I am
Sincerely yours,
FRANK Y. MCLAUGHLIN
Administrator".

This project is for $48,057, sponsored by the State Park Commission, with splendid cooperation in use of equipment from the city, harbor commission and county. We owe a special vote of thanks to George White, Bob Gregory, Fred Rhodes, Mr. Rick of the City Planning Commission and Jos.H. Mack of WPA.

We can never accomplish any dredging in Mission Bay unless we have the city, county or state put up a large financial contribution, anywhere from 30 to 45 percent of the total cost, in which case it will be WPA or PWA for the balance of the funds. We will never get it anywhere until Pacific Beach, Ocean Beach and Mission Beach get on their hind legs and howl. The reason is this:

The city and county are interested in many other projects which they think more worthy. Over 250 of them have been sponsored by San Diego City, County and this is just a few of them:

Civic Center	$990,000
El Capitan Pipe Line, (PWA)	129,000
Hodges Dam (PWA)	81,000

College Reservoir	45,000
Torrey Pine pipe line (gift)	10,000
Rosecrans pipe line	12,000
San Diego new jail	150,000
San Diego Harbor development and dredging	275,000
(from the goverment) and	150,000
(out of City of San Diego funds) Balboa Park rehabilitation, U. S.	93,293
City	13,894

The federal government poured $1,300,000 into San Diego's Fair, it is reported.

Eight WPA projects are now under construction: 8th & J. St. Fire station, La Jolla fire station. Sewer job at 35th & Copley, and another sewer job at 20th & B Sts. The goverment has advanced $188,538 for street repair work, and as you know with only $20,000 left in the city's fund the least they can do is to give us the fishing pier at Ocean Beach and the swimming pool at Hoover High, but they have a dozen other projects before them. Just so the county of San Diego has had WPA and PWA money for the building and oiling of 400 or 500 miles of roads, etc., while Mission Bay lies undeveloped.

I am just giving you the picture as I see it. The building of the groins protecting Mission Beach from further erosion and the development of Mission Bay Park along Pacific avenue are about the only things that we are sure of to date for Mission Bay State Park. It will take about $500,000 to properly dredge Mission Bay for a recreation center, of which the city, county or state will have to raise $200,000 at least, in cash, if the administration is going to continue donating as in the past.

Yours sincerely,
ED FLETCHER

MOTORCYCLE LANDS ON DRIVER

Miss Alta Withrow and Ange Mandry of 4944 Santa Monica Ave, were enjoying a motorcycle ride on Sunset Cliffs blvd. until they reached Del Monte Ave. As they turned on Del Monte the ride ended in a spill, Alta was thrown on the cement, causing a bruised and cut left knee. The motorcycle landed on top of Ange who escaped with a scratch. It was one of the accidents where the lady pays.

Shipping Is Crippled by Maritime Strike

THIRTY-SEVEN thousand maritime workers on the Pacific coast went on strike, and immediately the trouble spread to the Gulf and Atlantic coasts. In the west about 150 vessels were tied up in ports and others heading that way faced walk-outs by their crews on arrival. In New York members of the International Seamen's union voted a "sit down" strike in defiance of their national officers, and maritime workers in Houston and Port Arthur, Texas, quit their jobs and picketed the waterfront. Federal officials were trying hard to settle the disputes between the unions and shipping companies, chief of which relate to control of the hiring halls, wage increases and shorter hours. Assistant Secretary of Labor E. F. McGrady was in San Francisco and intimated the government might intervene.

Mayor Rossi

"When any group, whether bankers, employers or labor, take action endangering the welfare of the nation they are assuming a position that the government must challenge to protect the state and the people," McGrady said.

"The free flow of water-borne foreign and interstate commerce has become paralyzed. This will involve directly or indirectly the lives of the citizens of the whole nation."

San Francisco had the added distress of a strike of 1,000 warehousemen who demanded higher wages, and Mayor Angelo Rossi was mustering his forces to meet both this trouble and the maritime strike. He expected violent warfare along the waterfront and said he would take the necessary steps to protect public interests. The police set up headquarters in the Ferry building and strung their own telephone wires to every pier.

It was reported in San Francisco that coast shipowners were considering a plan to ask the United States navy to put "safety crews" aboard western merchant ships left unmanned.

Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, as a member of the federal maritime commission, opened a fact-finding hearing in San Francisco, summoning the shipowners to present their case first. The seven striking unions and their allies were to be heard later. The maritime commission had previously ordered peremptorily that the strike be delayed until it could hold the hearing, but the unions declined to submit to this dictation.

Toronto's "Baby Derby" Ends in a Muddle

WHEN Charles Vance Millar died ten years ago leaving a will in which $500,000 was bequeathed to the Toronto woman who gave birth to the greatest number of children in the ensuing decade, it was considered a sardonic joke. The "baby derby" is over, and it still is a joke, or at least a sad muddle. Six women are tied for the prize, each claiming nine registered babies, and eight others have filed claims with the executors of the will.

Two relatives of Millar announced they would contest the will; and the Ontario government was ready to intervene with legislation that would keep the lawyers, who planned legal actions in behalf of various claimants, from getting most of the money.

Mussolini Says Italy's Policy Is Armed Peace

"OUR policy is one of peace with everybody. But it will be an armed peace." Such was the flat statement of Premier Mussolini of Italy in a speech at Milan which was carried by radio throughout the world. It was addressed to all nations, but especially to Great Britain whose superiority in the Mediterranean Il Duce boldly challenged. He appealed to the British to come to some agreement with Rome as to Italy's rights and interests in this area, warning that failure to do so might mean war.

Premier Mussolini

"If the Mediterranean is for others a high road," said Mussolini, "for us Italians it is life. We have said a thousand times and I repeat we do not intend to menace this road, we do not intend to interrupt it. But we say, on the other hand, our rights and vital interests must be respected."

He saw the League of Nations "shipwrecked by Wilson ideology," which he asserted was the philosophy inspiring "the illusion of disarmament."

"The league must reform or perish." So far as Italy is concerned "the league may perish," he asserted.

In London it was said that recognition of Italy's sovereignty over Ethiopia could come only through League of Nations procedure so far as England is concerned. Foreign office comment was that no matter what might be the portent of Mussolini's speech, Britain would not change her Mediterranean policy.

Madrid Is Bombed by Insurgent Planes

REPEATED raids by rebel bombing planes were made on Madrid and its suburbs and scores of persons, mainly women and children, were killed. There was fierce and desperate fighting northeast of the capital and the government forces were driven back toward the city. The defense lines were reorganized, however, south of Madrid and on the road to Toledo and the government commanders were preparing for a "sweeping new offensive." The Fascists took Brunete after a bloody fight, having already captured three other towns in that region, and came within seventeen miles of Madrid.

Hoare Warns Russia Not to Meddle in England

IN THE house of commons representatives of the British government declared that nonintervention in Spain must be preserved to prevent chaos in Europe; and then Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, uttered a stern warning to soviet Russia not to interfere with affairs in England.

Sir Samuel Hoare

"It is almost always disastrous to interfere in the affairs of other countries," Sir Samuel declared, addressing a west-end meeting. "I commend that observation to agents of the comintern. They will find that the more they interfere in the domestic affairs of this country, the worse it will react against their activities."

Sir Samuel added: "On no account must we interfere in business which does not concern us. It is necessary to say that—and say it most clearly—in view of the very curious vacillating attitude adopted by the Labor party toward the civil war in Spain."

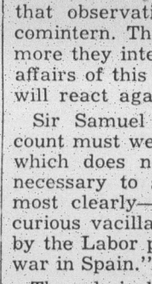
The admiralty first lord referred to the complete "volte face" of the Labor party in resolutely supporting the government's policy of "hands off Spain" at the party congress recently and then shifting to demands that the government permit British sale of arms to Spain.

Mollison Sets a Record in Atlantic Flight

CAPT. JAMES A. MOLLISON, English aviator, established a new speed record for trans-atlantic flights when he landed at Croydon airport, near London, 13 hours and 17 minutes after he had left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, in his American Bellanca monoplane Dorothy. The previous fastest west to east crossing was made in 1932 by Amelia Earhart in 14 hours, 54 minutes from Harbor Grace to Londonderry, Ireland.

Nazi Four Year Program Launched by Goering

GEN. HERMANN WILHELM GOERING, German minister of air and now the director of the Nazi four-year economic scheme to make the reich independent of the rest of the world in raw materials, launched his program at a great Nazi rally in Berlin. "We shall hack finger after finger off the foreign hand clutching at Germany's throat within the next four years," he declared.



Gen. Goering

Outlining his plans, Goering said no German had starved, nor would starve. The high seas fishing fleet will be increased, he asserted, so the people can eat fish when meat is not available. Whale fishing will be developed for the margarine it can produce, he promised.

Goering urged all Germans to follow the example of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler who, he said, eats neither meat nor butter. The audience yelled with delight when the robust Goering told them he had lost 22 pounds by eating less butter.

Germany would prefer the old system of international exchange of wares, but this now is impossible in a mad world, so Germany will build her factories, produce her own synthetic rubber and her own substitutes for cotton and other materials for which she now must spend millions of dollars yearly, the general declared.

Roosevelt Names Eight for Peace Conference

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL and seven other Americans were named by President Roosevelt as the United States delegates in the forthcoming inter-American conference in Buenos Aires for the maintenance of peace. The conference is to open on December 1, and the American delegation is on its way now to the Argentine capital. Mr. Hull's colleagues are:

Sumner Welles, assistant secretary of state in charge of Latin-American affairs; Alexander W. Weddell, ambassador to Argentina; Adolf A. Berle Jr., chamberlain of New York city; Alexander F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Charles G. Fenwick, professor of political science, Bryn Mawr college; Michael F. Doyle, Philadelphia lawyer, and Mrs. Elsie F. Musser, Salt Lake city, member of the Utah state senate.

Mrs. "Wally" Simpson Is Granted Divorce

PROCEEDINGS lasting nineteen minutes in the court of assizes at Ipswich, England, sufficed to give marital freedom to Mrs. "Wally" Simpson. Justice Sir Anthony Hawke heard neatly arranged evidence of the infidelity of Ernest Simpson, who was not represented, and gruffly gave a decree nisi to the attractive American woman who has been and is the close friend of King Edward VIII. For six months she will be on probation, technically chaperoned at all times, and if her behavior satisfies the king's proctor she will be unqualifiedly free April 27 to marry again. Whether or not her new husband, if she takes one, will be King Edward is a question that only time and the two persons most directly concerned can determine.

Mrs. Simpson

Mrs. Simpson returned from Ipswich to her London residence on Cumberland terrace, Regents park, and there told interviewers that she was angered and humiliated by the international sensation her divorce has caused. She said she might go abroad for a time but that she would never return to the United States.

Lorado Taft, Noted Sculptor, Dies

LORADO TAFT of Chicago, generally recognized as the foremost American sculptor of this period, died at the age of seventy-six after an illness of eight days. He knew his demise was impending and worked hard almost to the last in the endeavor to complete several commissions. Mr. Taft was a graduate of the University of Illinois and studied in the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. He did many important pieces of sculpture and also was continually active in enlarging public knowledge and appreciation of art.

Trade Balance Unfavorable for Nine Months

EXPORTS of manufactured goods and raw materials exceeded imports into the United States during September by more than four million dollars, according to a report released by Secretary of Commerce Roper. But the flow the other way was so strong during the previous three months that the country suffered an unfavorable balance of trade during the first nine months of the year amounting to $33,136,000. This is in contrast with a favorable balance of $66,496,000 in the corresponding period of 1935.

Secretary Roper

Roper minimized the situation, declaring that heavy exports of raw cotton, tobacco and automobiles would probably bring the trade balance more into line with previous years. Pressed for further explanation Roper insisted that "our government as such does not compete with other governments in the selling of goods," and this was the province of private business. On reciprocal trade agreements he was mum.

"We'd like to end the year with a favorable trade balance, naturally," he said, "but we are going through a period of study and readjustment in world trade."

Census Bureau Guess Is 128,429,000 Population

UNCLE SAM's nephews and nieces now number 128,429,000, according to the estimate of Director William L. Austin of the bureau of census. The new figure, as of July 1, represented an increase of 908,000, or 0.71 per cent, since July 1, 1935. It was based on the number of births and deaths during the year ending June 30, 1936, and the excess of immigration over emigration.

The bureau of agricultural economics also has been doing some population estimating. It says the back to the farm movement of the depression years has halted and that the farm population remained practically stationary during 1935, being 31,809,000 at the end of that year. This figure, the bureau says, was only slightly greater than in 1920 and "somewhat less" than in 1910.

EMBLEMS

IF YOU live in a state where they still allow party emblems on the ballot, take a look at them as you mark yours. That eagle soaring above the clouds at the top of the Republican column should remind you of Gen. John C. Fremont, who was the first Republican candidate for President back in 1856. It may be reminiscent of the eagles which he saw when he was "The Pathfinder" in the West or it may mean that the Republicans have been in power so long during the last 80 years that they figure they have a better right than any other party to claim the national bird.

That lordly crowing rooster at the head of the Democratic column should remind you of Joseph Chapman of Indiana whose habit of crowing over Democratic victories a century ago resulted in this symbol for his party.

That rising sun, with its beams glinting over an ocean, as though foretelling the day when there will be "Water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink" tells you that below it are the names of the candidates on the Prohibition ticket. Those hands clasped against a background of the earth tell of the Socialists' dream of greater equality for mankind all over the earth. That stout bare arm with the hammer in hand speaks for the Labor party and that sickle and hammer remind you that the Communists would have us follow the example of Soviet Russia.

There was once a time when a Bull Moose snorted defiance at the top of one column on the ballot. That was when Theodore Roosevelt was seeking a third term under the Progressive banner but since 1912 the Bull Moose has been an extinct political animal.

Or course, if you live in a state where they use voting machines the emblems may be slightly different.

The reason for these emblems on the ballot is a practical one, besides their symbolical significance. In the early days they were placed there to aid voters who had left their spectacles at home and who didn't want to vote for the wrong candidates by mistake. When the tides of immigration began pouring into the country millions of foreigners who were illiterate, even after naturalization, these emblems were helpful to them in their voting. As new parties arose the use of these symbols helped avoid confusion and even though many efforts have been made to do away with them, they are still in widespread use.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

IF EVER there was a case of "history repeats itself" in American politics it was illustrated in the careers of Henry Clay and James G. Blaine. Separated by half a century, those careers were almost exact duplicates of near achievement and ultimate disaster. There were other resemblances also.

Both men were magnetic in personality, eloquent in speech and idolized by their followers. Both were master politicians and dominated the councils of their parties but both fell victims to a political enemy whose fateful vengeance followed them all through their days of striving for the presidency. Andrew Jackson was Clay's Nemesis; Roscoe Conkling was Blaine's.

Early in his career Blaine recognized his similarity to Clay. When Grover Cleveland, then comparatively unknown, was nominated by the Democrats in 1884, Blaine had a premonition of defeat. "I am the Henry Clay of the Republican party," he declared to a friend. "Clay was defeated in two conventions when he could have been elected, and he was nominated for President when his competitor was elected. That competitor (Polk) was one who had not been publicly discussed as a presidential candidate before the meeting of the Baltimore convention in 1844. I was defeated in two conventions when I could have been elected. I am nominated now with a competitor alike obscure with the competitor of Clay."

Then he shook his head and murmured sadly, "1844—1884!"

His premonition of defeat was a true one. Cleveland, the unknown, beat him in 1884 just as Polk, the unknown, beat Clay in 1844.

So among all the "also-rans" of American political history Henry Clay of Kentucky and James G. Blaine of Maine come down to us as the "really epic figures that stand out as tragic personifications of forlorn hopes."

Sacred Foot Print

A simple impression in a rock on Adam's Peak in Ceylon—five feet by two feet and shaped like a human foot—is sacred to a third of the world's population. The 175,000,000 Buddhists claim it was made by Buddha, the 250,000,000 Hindus maintained it was made by their god Siva and the 250,000,000 Mohammedans assert that it was made by Adam when he stood there, on one foot for 200 years, to expiate his crime in the Garden of Eden. —Collier's Weekly.

UNUSUAL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

INVITED up some folks last week
To see a sample of our climate,
Of which I often highly speak,
In hours poetic even rime it,
They landed in a burning sun,
The hottest known in many seasons,
And so my boasting days are done,
For many reasons.

The sun went down, the clouds came up,
The rain began to run in rivers,
And, when we sat us down to sup,
The guests began to get the shivers.
Just what they thought that night of me,
Who bragged about this place of places,
They did not say, but I could see
It in their faces.

And then we had three days of fog
(I'd bragged of sun, times without number).
The foghorn blew, that croaking frog,
And no one got a wink of slumber.
It rained from seven until ten,
And then it blazed from ten till seven.
I'll never boost a place again,
Not even Heaven.

Just a Little Smile

HINTING

The Aberdonian had been courting his girl for some time and had at last plucked up sufficient courage to propose to her.

But somehow, when the moment arrived, things didn't seem to be quite so easy.

"I was here on Monday night, wasn't I, Jeanie?" he began.

"Ye was that."

"And I was here again on Tuesday nicht?"

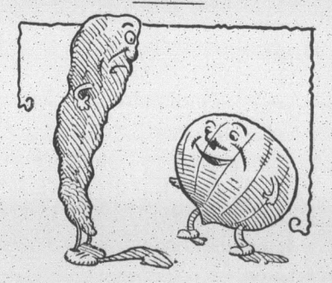
"That's so."

"And I was back again on Wednesday nicht?"

"Ye was, Ian."

"An' this is Friday and here I am again. Oh, Jeanie, d'ye no' smell a rat?"—Answers Magazine.

OH, SQUASE



"Wrestle with you? I should say not, you're too strong for me, Mr. Onion!"

Song Sadness

"Do you remember the girl who used to sit at a piano by the open window and warble 'I'm Saddest When I Sing'?" asked one old-timer.

"Well," answered the other, "I miss her terribly. She never lasted more than ten or fifteen minutes. She was much better than the radio that keeps going by the hour whether there's anybody home or not."

Self-Deception

"Why don't you marry some good man?"

"The trouble is," said Miss Cayenne, "that any lady who finds a man who really interests her is likely to be misled by her own imagination. His appreciation of her makes her think he must have extraordinary taste and discrimination."

Encouraging Sociability

"Your boy Josh knows the scientific designations of all the insects that attack crops."

"Yes," replied Farmer Corntossel; "but I don't believe it does much good. I ain't sure that callin' 'em by their right names doesn't make 'em want to hang around an' git more familiar than ever."

"Hoss" Sense

A darky came home all flustered one day and told his wife—Liza, I'ze got a lawsuit on me hands.

Liza replied—Dat's fine, Sam. Take hit offen yo' hands and put hit on yo' back. Dem ole overalls look conglamerous.

Her Idea of It

Counsel—Please remember that you are on oath. You understand the nature of an oath, do you not?

Girl Witness—Profane, isn't it?—Stray Stories Magazine.

THE PUZZLE

"What kind of a tree is this anyway, here summer is most over and it hasn't a single leaf yet."

Your Error

The visitor called at the village library. "May I have the 'Letters of Charles Lamb'?" he inquired.

"You're in the wrong building. Mr. Lamb," said the new clerk pleasantly. "The post office is just across the street."—Toledo Blade.

Changed En Route

Brown—Great Scott! Postman, whatever is it?

Postman—Well, sir, the label says "wild duck," but they're 'umming birds now.—Vancouver Province.

Welcome, Brother

"Father, what is a traitor in politics?"

"A man who leaves his party and goes over to the other one.

"What is a man who loeaves his party and comes over to yours?"

"A convert."—Stray Stories Magazine.

Fortunate

Senior—My brother fell against the piano and hit his head.

Junior—Hurt him much?

Senior—No, he hit the soft pedal.

Bicameral Legislatures

All the states have a lower and upper house in their state legislatures. All the states are bicameral (two branches to the assembly or legislature), although it is curious to note that Pennsylvania, Georgia and Vermont were at first constructed on the unicameral, or one-house system of legislature.

All the states designate the upper house of the legislature as the senate and in most of the states the lower branch of the state legislature is known as the house of representatives, although a few style it the assembly. In three it is known as the house of delegates.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never felt better."—Mrs. Jas. Filler.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

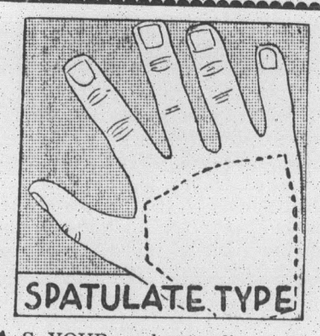
Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. Leading Druggists.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis

© Public Ledger, Inc.



AS YOUR understanding of the language of the hand increases, you'll find its practical application helpful as well as entertaining. Knowledge of the significance of the types of hands alone will inform you of their owner's characteristics and enable you to gauge both business and social contacts with certainty as to the kind of man or woman you are dealing with.

The Spatulate Type of Hand.

This type will be readily recognized by its irregular shape, which is sometimes most noticeable on the palm side, in the space bounded by the base of the fingers, the wrist and edges of the palm.

The fingers and thumb of this type may vary, in some hands being of medium length, in others possessing surprising length. The fingers, as well as thumb, however, are characteristically broad and chisel shaped, with large, flat pads on the side opposite and extending beyond the nail. The thumb is somewhat loose-looking and more often than not is of almost abnormal length from the beginning of the nail joint to the nail tip.

The men or women whose hands are of this type are usually inclined to restlessness if their creative and emotional natures are held too much in conventional restraint. The spatulate type, with palm much wider at the finger base than wrist, indicates a fair measure of emotional control. When the reverse occurs, there is apt to be a decided tendency toward impetuous speech and conduct.

Those with spatulate type hands are happiest and most successful in activities which loose their tremendous powers of energy, quick thinking, originality and creative abilities amid surroundings that are as free as possible from conventional restraints.

BEDTIME STORY by Thornton W. Burgess

A ROBBER MEETING

IT WAS night in the big barn. It was the night of Billy Mink's visit when he had killed the big rat there. As soon as Billy had left the barn the gray old leader of the rats had sent word around that all the rats in the barn should meet him at once at their usual meeting place under the floor.

As soon as the word was received each member of the robber band hurried to the meeting place. They knew why the gray old leader had called them together, and as they hurried to the meeting place there was fear in the heart of each one of them. It was long since fear had been known in the big barn. It was the first time some of them had ever experienced fear. You see, they had been so well taught how to avoid traps and poison that they did not fear those things. They had made the cat afraid of them, so they did not fear the cat. It was no trouble at all to keep out of the way of the farmer, so they did not fear the farmer.

But this slim, brown enemy who had entered their den so boldly and had run down and killed one of their number had brought with him fear. So, as from every direction the rats scurried to that meeting place, they continually looked behind them for that slim, brown creature, who moved so swiftly and from whom even their gray old leader had run away. Most of them did not know who Billy Mink was, for they had always lived in that big barn, and no one at all like Billy had ever been there before.

As soon as all the rats had answered his call the gray old leader began to speak. "I have called this meeting," said he, "to decide what we had best do. A terrible enemy has come among us and, as you know, has killed one of our number. He has left the big barn, as I know, because I watched him. For the time being we are quite safe. But when he again becomes hungry he will return."

"Who is he?" squeaked a young rat. "He didn't look very big to me. If we all get together, I don't see why we should be afraid of him. We drove out that cat and that cat is a great deal bigger than this fellow. Who is he, anyway?"

"He is Billy Mink," replied the gray old leader gravely.

"And who is Billy Mink?" squeaked another half-grown young robber.

"He is sure death to any rat he may start out to catch," replied the old leader. "He belongs to the Weasel family and all members of this family are enemies of the rat tribe, and more to be feared than any other enemy we have."

"Why can't we hide when he comes?" asked another young robber. "I never have seen any one I couldn't hide from."

"Then, unless I am greatly mistaken, you are likely to have a chance," snapped the leader.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

NOODLE AND MACARONI DISHES

IN FAMILIES where meat is too expensive to buy often, the following dishes will furnish all the flavor of the meat with a small amount of it:

Chili Noodles.

The noodles may be homemade (which are probably cheaper if used in large quantity) or the package noodles. Cook as many as are needed in boiling salted water, drain and add the following: One small onion chopped, also one green pepper, one pound of round steak cut into inch pieces, brown in two tablespoonfuls of suet, then add one-half cupful strained tomato, one cupful of water, one cupful of cooked kidney beans, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne pepper. Heat thoroughly and serve with grated cheese.

Veal Paprika With Noodles.

Take five ounces or more of noodles, cook in salted water until tender, then drain. Sprinkle four or five cutlets of veal with salt and pepper and dip into egg and crumbs. Fry in a little butter until well cooked. Make a sauce of two tablespoonfuls of butter and four of flour, add salt and cayenne to season and two cupfuls of milk, cook until well blended. Place the cutlets on a hot platter, add the noodles to the white sauce and pour over the meat. Garnish with parsley.

Macaroni With Vegetables.

Fry one chopped onion in two tablespoonfuls of butter until brown. Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, three cupfuls of boiling soup stock, one-half pound of uncooked macaroni, three-fourths of a cupful of string beans, one-half cupful of green peas and the same of diced carrot. Cook all together 20 minutes, stirring frequently.

State Senator Says We Must "H-O-W-L"

Senator Ed Fletcher's letter, published elsewhere in this issue, says regarding development of Mission bay and beach projects, "We will never get anywhere until Pacific Beach, Ocean Beach and Mission Beach get on their hind legs and howl."

Most of us had about come to the conclusion that we had been "howling" in vain, yet when we look over the array of projects the city and county has to consider, it is very definite those who are most insistant will have their demands met, while those who ask meekly will receive little consideration.

All the work has merit and some projects have been especially necessary for the protection of county property or city water, streets, sewers, or development that is highly essential in a rapidly growing community.

A suggestion has been made that Ocean Beach citizens protest with WPA authorities, the building of a new city jail away from the civic center, in an effort to have funds left for a fishing pier, but whether a move of that sort would gain anything for us is very questionable.

OUR NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

Last week's national election was epoch-making history in all its superlative sense, giving the president-elect of the United States the largest victory ever recorded since the organization of our great Republic. Now, that "the Nation has spoken," let there be renewed courage among representatives and diplomats of goverment. We are proud of our great commonwealth and Heritage of Independence. So let us show our citizenship as the reward for the country, and by our conduct and rules, emphasize our freedom.

Government is a divine institution and a social necessity. No government can exist very long without laws and strict enforcement, otherwise it would mean a state of anarchy. Our great "land of the free' is under strong protection, but all laws, even then, are not always enforced. America needs this power and protection; evil agencies are continually contaminating peace and progress. Government, therefore, needs guardians of the law.

Government belongs to the people, but humanity is changeable. There is a continual habit with some to ever sneer with bickerings and hate at officials and legislators of government. What an amazing transformation of our entire social and economic life would be made, if all could adopt as the principle for their dealings, the law of tolerance and fairness, and feel that they owed every man aggressive kindness just as much as though they had signed a note at the bank! Good citizenship is of the kind who inveighs against strife and jealousy, and shows a will to abide peaceably together with all.

In this age of complex times, we hear lots of talk about economics, and surely economics is a great question; one which is very appropriate in these days of need. But how few understand the problems while many know so little about the subject! Then again we pause to learn that our nation tolerates a fifteen billion crime bill; a six billion gambling bill; a five billion liquor bill. It looks on the face of it that instead of talking economics, may we better begin talking common sense. This is not an indictment on our intelligence, however; it is just a timely suggestion.

We believe that the country is headed for greater prosperity and democracy. Let us now hope, since the depression has spent itself, and that the cycle of good times are on the way, the important thing is to practice national economy, as well as balancing the budget. A well-managed family lives within its income, so does a well-managed government and a good manager sees that it does so. With a $65,000,000,000 national income, there must be encouraging financial prospects ahead.

The best kind of air for breathing is air distilled with pure sunshine. This is, perhaps, why so many avoid open-air cloudiness, and also the reason why a day without sunshine is mostly gloomy and often dreary to so many people. The penetrating rays of the sun have been chosen by Nature as one of her standard remedies provided for most every bodily ill, as well as mental restraints. The nervous system is very susceptible to daily conditions, and can create ruin or rescue: the will makes one cranky and a whole list of interference against work or pleasure. Bathing in the mellow sunshine will perform a cure-all for the over-taxed and strained nerves, besides proving a benefit to that worried, restless and haggard body. Nature's great healer is obtained without money and without price!

In the nation's social picture, we seem to have arrived at the true meaning of the name, "forgotten man." From a recent survey, it was learned that more than 100,000 Indians are "homeless, vagabonds without a scrap of land," living amid the poorest housing conditions in the United States. Over 50,000 are living in miserable hovels, many of them but one room. Food is poor requiring relief rations. This dependence robs the Indians of the financial and social advantages of being self-sustaining citizens. Indian lands have been reduced 70 percent, or almost 100,000,000 acres during the last half century. Present Indian holdings contain some good land, but approximately one-half are desert or semi-desert, located in areas where water is scarce with no available supply for irrigation. However, in the past three years, help has been shown to render the race economic scurity, by incrasing land holdings by over two million acres in 17 states. The Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 authorized a $10,000,000 revolving fund of which $3,500,000 has been appropriated for a new system of extending credit to the Indian. Modern America is showing not only interest, but it is proposed that they shall be redeemed.

Ocean Beach School News

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK AT OCEAN BEACH SCHOOL

While Ocean Beach elementary school children enjoyed an amateur hour and a moving picture their parents filled the auditorium, Nov. 9 for the combined PTA and school program to hear a panel discussion lead by William Hawks, principal of Florence school on "Problems of Pupil Progress." Some 300 visitors attended the open house in the school rooms. Two basic assumptions were made by the chairman in his preface to the discussion (1) the purpose of education is to safeguard democracy (2) we are in a changing age both socially and economically. He stressed the fact that we must know in what direction we wish the child to go before we can report his progress. Some questions and responses by members of the panel follow: What place has competition in modern life? Mrs. W. S. Fay, president of S. D. Council of PTA responded: "The only place left for competition is that of ideas. We exist to get ahead of ourselves not of the other fellow."

By what standards should we measure children? Terrence B. Geddis, principal of Andrew Jackson and Rest Haven schools said, "We must replace artificial standards and hurdles by measuring each individual child by his own maturation and learning rate to be determined by established measures. Individual children do vary; we must provide for individual differences as scientifically as possible.

What has psychology contributed to understanding pupil adjustment? Miss Bertha Trowbridge, director of Bureau of Child Reference and Counsel, remarked that "The day has passed when the little physical child is looked at by the doctor; when the little emotional child is mostly spanked by the parents; when the little intellectual child is dealt with by the teacher." We hear now of the whole child which means the physical, social, emotional, and intellectual all in one. This whole child is more than the sum of these."

How can we deal with different levels of ablity in reading, etc., in our school program? Miss Louise Weller, principal of Benjamin Franklin school spoke of the handicap of having such large numbers of children in each room and described the flexible program now being attempted in which a child remains with his social group but if there in no reading group at his level within his social group he is sent to another room for that one subject. She also spoke of the contribution of the depression in developing appreciation in our children and their parents for things about them in nature, for books and other things aside from what money will buy.

Is our present school organization the best to serve our purposes? Ellis D. Dugger, principal of Pacific Beach reminded us that our school organization is not sacred and that educators aim to improve it. He emphasized the need to (1) obviate failure (2) provide better counseling (individual diagnosis and handling of each pupil's difficulties) and (3) to handle pupil placement more adequately to fill individual needs.

Following the program coffee and coffee cake were served to the guests by the room mothers, Mrs. Dean Marshall, Mrs. Joe Frieze and Mrs. Ted Hopkins.

The Warren-Walker school is preparing for a Thanksgiving program which will be given the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. The music class is learning two songs; "A Dakota Indian Hymn" paraphrased by Philip Frazier and "Thanks be to God" by Stanley Dickson.

The children have been playing volley ball for about two weeks and are getting a great deal of pleasure out of it. It is the first time that most of them have played the game.

Ancient Mayas Kept Thanksgiving Day

WHEN football fans turn out for the Thanksgiving games they will perhaps realize that they are conforming with an old American custom, but do they know how old that custom is? asks a writer in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Thanksgiving football games were instituted in America about 2000 B. C. The custom began among the ancient Mayas, who, although they did not eat mince pie or sit in concrete stadiums, did dine on turkey and did set aside a day on which they offered up the first fruits of the harvest season, feasted and played, or watched a ball game in a stone-walled enclosure.

The department of middle American research at Tulane university has discovered that the Mayan games were like ours in many respects. Just as fans today travel for miles to see the Thanksgiving games, so did our predecessors on this continent journey across the land, on foot or horseback, to Chichen-Itza, holy city of the Mayas, to view the holiday spectacle.

In his description of the Mayan game, Maurice Reis, on the staff of the department of middle American research at Tulane, says:

"As it began when Rome ruled the waves and Frenchmen wore bear skins as their Sunday best, football wasn't just football. That is, the ball wasn't kicked with the foot and the scores were produced by persuading the ball to pass through a perpendicular ring high on a stone wall."

When the thousands of pilgrims who came every year arrived at Chichen-Itza, they offered sacrifices to the earth gods in an impressive thanksgiving ceremony led by the ruler.

"The earth gods," says Alredo Barrera Vasquez, of the staffs of the Mexican National Museum and the National University of Mexico, who is of Maya descent, "are called the Four Bacabs and are represented as supporting the four corners of the earth. Each god has an appropriate color: red for the east where the sun rises, black for the west where it sinks into darkness, yellow for the warm south and white for the cold north. Yum K'ax, Lord of the Forest, resides at the center of the universe and is characterized by the colors blue and green."

The Thanksgiving ceremonies still take place in some parts of Mexico today, although most of the old customs are dominated by the Catholic influence.

The name of the principal god of the harvest is lost. However, we have many representations of him on ancient monuments. He is always depicted as being young and handsome, symbolic of life and growth. From his head grows maize instead of hair.

GOOD stuffing for Thanksgiving bird is of prime importance to the success of the yearly feast. It must, first of all, be well selected, a delicately flavored stuffing for the roast chicken and turkey, a more strongly flavored one for the roast goose or duck, writes Helen Robertson in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Second, it must be perfectly seasoned. Not too strongly to overwhelm the deliciousness of the bird, nor yet so bland in taste as to be uninteresting. Third, it must be of the proper consistency, not too moist, nor yet too dry. And fourth, there must be enough.

Bread being the usual foundation of the dressing, let us talk of it first. All kinds of breads may be used in the dressing providing the white bread predominates. Cold biscuits, pieces of corn bread, slices of toast, slices of whole wheat and of rye may all be used. Use part crust too, as well as the crumb. The bread should be dry and if part or all is lightly toasted, so much the better. And bread cut into small cubes makes better dressing than when crumbed.

For the very large turkey, upward of eighteen or nineteen pounds, two and one-half to three pounds of bread will be needed for the dressing, while for the smaller bird of around ten pounds, one and three-fourths to two pounds of bread may be used. And for the smaller bird, one pound and under should be sufficient.

Celery, oysters, mushrooms, chestnuts, the other ingredients you will use are of course dependent upon your own personal tastes and upon the bird you are serving. Here is a basic recipe for dressing for the twelve to fifteen-pound bird.

Bread Dressing.

3 qts. stale bread cubes — Sage to taste
2 tbsp. salt — 1 cup melted butter
1 tsp. pepper — 2 cups chopped celery
1 tbsp. chopped parsley — Cooked giblets

Prepare bread, sprinkle with seasonings. Pour over them melted butter and enough boiling water or stock from cooking giblets and neck to moisten. In adding butter and stock, toss the ingredients together lightly with a fork. Never press them together.

If you like onion in dressing, saute one or two slices in a portion of the butter before adding it to the dressing.

For oyster dressing omit giblets, add one pint of oysters cut in half and the oyster liquor, well strained.

To make mushroom dressing saute one-half pound mushrooms, sliced, in a portion of the butter and mix with bread crumbs. In using the mushrooms celery may be omitted or a smaller amount used.

Chestnut dressing is usually liked. To make it, prepare one-half pound chestnuts, chopping them rather fine. Mix with bread.

Sausage dressing is another favorite. One-half pound is sufficient for this amount. Cook it over a low fire fifteen minutes before adding to the dressing.

For the roast duck or goose you will find this rice and prune stuffing tasty:

Brown three tablespoons of finely minced onion in two tablespoons butter. Add one cup well washed, drained rice. Let simmer until rice is slightly browned. Then add four cups soup stock or water in which bouillon cubes have been dissolved, eight or nine cooked prunes, pitted, and one teaspoon salt. Cook over a very low fire or over hot water until rice is tender. Season well.

Bread Cut Into Small Cubes Makes Better Dressing.

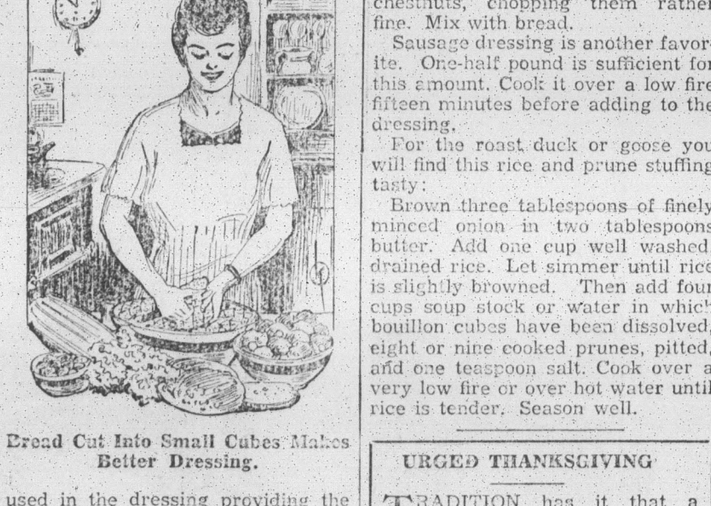
URGED THANKSGIVING

TRADITION has it that a woman was responsible for establishing the modern Thanksgiving day on the last Thursday of November. According to that story, President Lincoln issued his proclamation in answer to urgent pleas from Sarah J. Hale, editor of Godey's Lady's Book.

"That Yankee Holiday"

President Andrew Jackson refused to give Thanksgiving day the customary presidential sanction because he would have nothing to do with "that Yankee holiday."

Pioneers Always Prepared for Attacks



Never was death far from the Seventeenth century pioneers and even into so pastoral a scene as this must the ugly, sinister muzzle of a gun intrude. On the walk to church, while plowing or planting, even while courting there was the evil face of death looking on and the man must have in his hand the tool to beat it off.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Are we responsible for the events that take place in our lives? Is our good fortune of our own choosing or are we puppets of an outside Fate that guides our destiny and administers happiness and unhappiness according to its own whim? These are questions which will be discussed next Sunday afternoon in the Temple of Peace, Theosophical International headquarters, Point Loma, in a forum-lecture to be given by Miss Grace Knoche of headquarters staff. The subject of the lecture is Do We Choose Our Own Karman?

One of the teachers of Sanskrit at Theosophical University, Miss Knoche is a brilliant student of the ancient philosophy of the Orient which emphasized the doctrine of Karman, or the law of cause and effect, to be of utmost importance in the understanding of life and its complicating problems.

Questions both written and oral are gladly received to be given consideration by the speaker of the day and other Theosophical students. All are cordially invited.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"If ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." These words of Paul to the Romans constitute the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Mortals and Immortals" on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

The Lesson-Sermon includes Paul's words to the Corinthians: "Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away. When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things."

Among the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, is the statement: "Men and women of riper years and larger lessons ought to ripen into health and immortality, instead of lapsing into darkness or gloom."

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

DOAN'S PILLS

Uncle Phil Says:

Reminiscence

The scenery one remembers most fondly will be what he saw while sitting serenely in contemplative meditation.

Culture also consists in knowing what not to cultivate.

A fault mender is better than a fault finder.

Many a man has noble aims, but it is the hits that count.

Good society wants good morals, and whenever they can't be, wants them kept out of sight.

Virtue and Vice

Following virtue is a steep ascent; following vice is a precipitous leap.

The way of the transgressor is hard, but apparently not half hard enough, or there wouldn't be so many repeaters.

Science, the friend of man, turns murderer in times of war.

Greatest triumph is to fish your friend out of the blues and make him laugh again.

But They're Not Assets

A man of bitter and glittering words may not have many friends but he has hosts of envious admirers.

Everything in nature goes by steps, nothing by leaps.

A hard-shelled man doesn't necessarily mean a hard-boiled one.

A good deal of common sense consists in just simply not butting in.

No Time to Choose

Lots of things he doesn't want come to the man who is impatient.

If science knew how to produce a genius, it would produce too many.

Besides backbone, another thing equally lacking, altogether too generally, is self-respect.

Probably your wants are as twenty to one to your needs.

"Oh, Bill!" said Jane. "Don't think of me—do just as if I were not here." She threw her own arms around his neck, and their lips met again in passionate appeal.

"Then come, Jane. We must dash through this pine before that fire you hear roaring catches up to us."

"Is that awful roar from a fire, Bill?"

"It is. It's our worst danger. Let's go, Jane."

To cross the wide belt of pine their course lay obliquely downhill. If anything were needed to spur them on, the thunder of the fire sweeping down the forest behind served as a dread warning that they had only minutes left to escape disaster.

Halfway down the ridge, Denison paused to rest Jane in his arms. She was panting like an antelope.

"Brave girl!" he murmured. "Not a sob—not a tear—"

"But we must hurry, Bill," she panted.

"Get a little breath for the next run."

"Can we make it, Bill, dear?"

"We've got to make it," he muttered "I'll save you, Jane, if it's the last thing I do in life."

"Don't save me unless you save yourself—remember that!"

"Come! We must make the spring—the spring!"

The timber was thinning, the ground growing rougher. The frontiersman and cowman who had gone through every adventure that befalls a man in a life of danger and escape made little of finding safe footing from rock to rock. But his charge had a harder time trying to keep her feet and to keep the pace. Denison offered to carry her. She would not hear of it.

He himself saw, before Jane realized it, that the end of her strength was at hand. Striving vainly to keep up, she stumbled and with a little moan fell forward on the ground. Denison picked her up in his arms. She could not speak; only panted. Her heart, pressed against his breast, pounded like a hammer.

"Put me down, Bill! Put me down!" she sobbed when she could breathe and form the words. "You must save yourself! Is the spring far, now?"

"Not far. Clasp your arms tight around my neck," was all he said, leaping along.

"You can't save us both; save yourself. You are dearer to me than my life, Bill."

"So are you to me. Hang on," he panted. "I'll never put you down!"

After another run he paused. "Bill, I can run a little now. Let me try it. Please, dear! Let me try!"

He shook his head and struggled on. The fire was only minutes behind him, its roar deafening.

A cry roused Jane in his arms.

"The spring!"

She cried to him in happy answer.

There was not an instant to spare. He slid down the steep side of the hollow that enclosed the spring. Jane, still in his arms, he rolled into the pool and lay panting beside her. The shock of the icy water revived her. He soused her head into the water. The pool was wide enough to submerge Jane, but not himself. He rolled in the shallower edge, wet himself all over and, holding her head just clear of the surface as she spluttered and coughed, gave her orders: "Keep your face down. Don't, don't open your eyes. You're safe if you do exactly as I say."

Savage flames burst above their heads. The burning air showered searing fragments of bark and branch on them as they lay huddled, comforting each other with words. "Breathe carefully, Jane," he cried in her ear. "This air will sear your lungs. Fill your nose and mouth with water, spit and splutter it out. My God, it is upon us!"

The heart of the fire was on them. They could no longer hear or think. Flame bellied and danced. Tongues of fire licked at their hiding heads. Denison mechanically dipped water into Jane's hair. Consciousness was nearly gone. Only the effort to live and the fierce instinct to protect the one he loved animated him.

With their trial of endurance almost at an end, a sudden explosion burst in the air above them. Denison, forgetting his caution, opened his eyes in the fear that a tree was falling. His eyeballs were scorched in a fraction of a second. He dashed his face back into the water; but mischief had been done.

At last the terrific outburst abated. With the hope of life reanimated, the two rose in the pool in their steaming clothing. Darkness fell from the sky above, but the forest was lighted with smoking and burning tree torches, the afterglow of its destruction.

The two who had passed through and escaped a hideous catastrophe stood clasped in each other's arms thanking God and delirous in a newfound, intimate happiness.

"Water!" exclaimed Denison. "I'm perishing, in spite of my cold bath. Aren't you thirsty?"

"Yes, but not suffering. I didn't have to carry you, you know."

Moving a few feet up to the basin of the spring itself, they pushed aside debris from the water's surface, drank from their cupped hands, and dashed water over their faces.

"Jane," said Denison when he rose again, "it was almost worth it for the way it's brought you and me together."

"It was," she whispered. "I've given you my trust."

"For all time, Jane?"

"For all time, Bill. Nothing shall ever part us, now."

Picking their way haltingly and cautiously down through smoking pines, dodging burning limbs that snapped and crackled menacingly overhead or crashed to the ground about them, the refugees emerged from the forest and could see that Denison's ranch buildings had escaped the flamas.

The instant they reached the ranch house, Denison ran to the well, filled the water bucket, and carried it to Jane. Sitting on the ground, bareheaded, they slaked their thirst out of the dipper together.

Denison turned to the corral. Jane, who had gone into the house, had got the fire going and was slicing bacon when she heard the clatter of hoofs outside, and angry voices.

"Where's my daughter, you damned scoundrel?" were the first words she made out. The sound of the voice that uttered them sent her running, the knife still in her hand, to the door. Amazed to dumbness, she saw her father and McCrossen in the saddle, facing Denison, who stood at the gate of his corral.

"Van Tambel," Denison spoke carefully, "you're too old a man for me to quarrel with. Just remember you're on my property and keep a civil tongue in your head. I've taken more of your abuse in years gone by than I ought to take. Now put your question civilly."

"I don't want no truck with you, Denison," shouted Van Tambel, raging. "Where's my girl?"

McCrossen had reined about and was starting for the house. "Swing back here, McCrossen," Denison sang out sharply. "Stop right where you are. My cabin's not open to public inspection!"

"A Lot of Good Timber Gone in That Blaze, Van," Muttered McCrossen.

"I don't give a damn for your cabin. There's Jane," the foreman shouted, "standing in the doorway."

Jane ran across the yard to the angry men. "Father!" she cried. "What in the world are you doing here? What brought you from the hospital?"

Her father's deep-set, piggy eyes flashed his fury on her. "You brought me here," he snapped savagely. "You wench! Living with this man, are you?"

"Father!" Outraged womanhood never spoke the word more stingingly. "Is it possible you insult me so vilely before you have heard a single word?" she said. "What have I to do with your grudges and quarrels?"

Rigid and erect, storming within and striking with white-hot words at her parent's base intimation, Jane silenced the men about her by her outraged dignity.

"What shameful words have you heard—and from whom"—she barely indicated her father's companion by a lightning flash of her eye—"that put such vile thoughts into your head?" She waited for no answer. "I rode to the peak of Gunlock Knob to see how the fire was heading—it has threatened Gunlock Ranch for two days. When I tried to ride down this afternoon, the fire cut me off. I should have been burned to death where I stood on the peak, if Bill Denison hadn't ridden up through another fire to save me. And now after fighting our way for hours through smoke and flame, he brings me down by the only possible way, to hear me foully insulted by my own father. This is too much!"

Van Tambel had not dreamed that a mere insult—his usual weapon toward everybody—would arouse anyone, much less his daughter, to such a pitch. Her buttoned blouse, torn rudely open at the neck by a forest branch, and her tie awry, revealed the girlish ivory of her throat and neck, while her hot words silenced the domineering brute before whose insolence few men could stand at ease.

"Look here, Jane!" bellowed her father in retreat. "You come out here for your health, didn't you?"

"I didn't come out here to be grossly insulted," she retorted.

"Where's your pony?"

"Heavens knows where it is, or where Bill Denison's is. I hope they're not burned up."

"Well, come along home. McCrossen will lend you his horse."

"He needn't. I will walk home just as soon as I have cooked some bacon for Bill Denison."

"Come along now."

"Did you hear me? I'll come home"—each word was defiantly emphasized—"when I have made coffee and cooked bacon for Bill Denison. When you get home, be kind enough to ask Bull Page to saddle a horse for me and bring it over." With this, Jane walked swiftly back to the cabin. Van Tambel, in a muttering rage, followed by McCrossen, started home.

A slender supper was at length got together. Then Jane made Denison lie back in a chair and submit to cold compresses on his eyes.

Waiting for Bull Page proved no hardship, but when the hands of Denison's little alarm clock pointed to midnight it dawned on Jane that her request had been ignored and that her father or McCrossen had meant she should walk home or compromise herself by staying all night at Denison's.

She boiled a bit inside when she realized the situation, but prepared to walk. To this Denison would not listen. He got up two ponies—he had but one extra saddle—and, despite her objections and protests, insisted on riding home with her.

It needed no announcer in the morning to tell Jane that her father had come home. She lay, exhausted and with every bone in her body aching, beyond her usual rising time. But there was an unusual scurrying about outside her room. Quong, old and winkled, was the only man of the household not in the least perturbed by the surprise return of Van Tambel.

Jane came to the table as her father was leaving it. "I want to see you after breakfast," was the gruff greeting he vouchsafed Jane.

She found Van Tambel seated at his desk in his bedroom, looking over bills. Jane went up to him.

"I could hardly believe my eyes when I saw you yesterday, father," she said coldly. "Did the doctor give you permission to come home?"

After a shuffling of papers came the first shot at Jane: "What did you fire McCrossen for?"

"Because he refused to obey orders," she retorted instantly.

"Whose orders?"

"My orders."

"Who owns this ranch?"

"You do. And," she added, keen-eyed, "you made me manager."

"I'll take that job off your shoulders. McCrossen is foreman here now. And I am boss. Now what about this skunk, Denison?"

"What about Mr. Denison, father?"

"He's a crook. And as long as you live, keep away from him."

"What has he ever done to you that's wrong, father?"

"He and his brother's been trying for five years to beat me out of Gunlock Spring and all that ranch land back of it.

"That's part of what he's done to me. He's stole my cattle besides. McCrossen is the only man that stayed by me through thick and thin. McCrossen's the right man for you. You can get married tomorrow if you want to.

"I haven't the slightest idea of getting married tomorrow, father. And if Mr. McCrossen were the only man left, I certainly should never marry. There's not a straight hair in his head. He's been robbing you for years."

"Sounds like that skunk Denison's been filling your ears for you."

"Bill Denison's barely ever mentioned McCrossen's name to me."

"Well, keep away from Denison for good, don't forget that."

Jane flinched inwardly but spoke low and clearly. "I can't promise that, father."

"Why not?"

"I don't think it's right."

"Ain't I your father?"

"Yes."

"Ain't a parent a-goin' to be obeyed?"

"If he is reasonable. I'm not a child, father."

He grew furious. "I don't give a damn what you are, you're not a-goin' to take up with any enemy of mine, 'n' you might just as well know it now—and I'll see that you don't."

Van Tambel, quitting the house, rode with McCrassen, over the hills burned the day before, to determine what further measures should be taken to insure safety for the ranch buildings. The two men halted at the foot of Gunlock Knob.

"A lot of good timber gone in that blaze, Van," muttered McCrossen.

Van Tambel was silent for a moment. "The ranch ain't worth as much as it was yesterday, that's sure," he said at last. Then after another pause: "I wouldn't mind the timber if the damned fire had held on till it cleaned out Denison."

Both were looking down on the neighbor's ranch.

"I wish I was rid of that fellow." Van Tambel's words fairly grated out of his harsh throat. Why couldn't that blamed fire have cleaned out his buildings yesterday?"

"It was a close scratch. If the wind had shifted—"

Certain of Milady's Vote

THREE post-election candidates for milady's wardrobe, every one a winner. Choose any one of these clever patterns and the vote will be unanimous that you have done well by yourself. Every pattern is accompanied by an illustrated instruction chart giving step by step details for quick sewing and perfect fit—the short cut to an adequate wardrobe.

Pattern 1821, a comely morning frock fashioned along princess lines, is available in a wide range of sizes, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. The smooth fitting and slenderizing hip line joins with the scalloped collar and cuffs in contrast to achieve a flattering effect, and this design is so simply made and so easy to wear, in swiss or percale or lawn or pongee, it will win instant favor. Size 38 requires four and three-fourths yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1958, the blouse and skirt combination, speaks for itself. Versatility is the keynote of this double duty pattern which consists of just eight simple pieces for both blouse and skirt. The wide and graceful revers conceal those extra pounds above the waist, and the panelled skirt is of the sort that will go well with any ensemble or tunic. Quickly and inexpensively made, this combination will add new life to any wardrobe with a minimum of effort. The pattern is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 18 requires two and three-fourths yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, two and one-sixth yards for the skirt. A grand pattern bargain.

Pattern 1843, the fitted slip, offers a choice of the strap or built-up shoulder and makes a perfect foundation garment for a smooth silhouette. Fashioned in silk or taffeta or pongee, the pattern employs just six pieces and goes together like a charm. Send for it today, in size 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 or 44. INTERESTING CHARACTERS AIDED AT GOOD WILL

The San Diego County Goodwill Industries reached a new high in cash receipts from store and salvage sales, in the month of Oct., reports Supt. Myron Insko. This allowed them to pay out more for wages than in any previous month.

Two unusually interesting characters were helped. One of these claimed to have been a lieutenant in the army aviation corps. He wore a dirty flannel shirt and tattered overalls and said that he had had nothing to eat for about thirty hours. He was given a meal and looking a hundred percent more vigorous, put in a fairly good day's work. After working a second day he doffed his filthy costume for some of the reconditioned Goodwill clothing and by means of his improved appearance got a better job outside the organization without much difficulty The other had a false leg and trouble in the other knee. He said he had been searching for work for a long time but no one was willing to hire him on account of his physical condition. By means of a reconstructed shoe he was able to discard his crutches and has been doing really excellent work in the repair of wheeled toys and electrical appliances.
